IN WHICH IS INCORPORATED HOUSEHOLD WORDS.

This brilliant and beautiful periodical is lessed mouthly by us from advance plates made in Landon, thee securing its publication on the same day in both hemispheres. Although but six mentite old it has already reached a nirculation in Barope and America of over 130,000 copies of such asseber. Tollowing are a few brief extracts from the commendations which have been besteved apply it by the American press:

From the Lawrence Sentinel, Mass.

We hope that this new periodical will led a large circulation in Lawrence. Parents could not put a work into the hands of their boys and girls that would give them so much instruction is me pleasant s way. The scientific articles have always been especially entertaining—at once theroughly obile-ophical and yet as fascinating as fetles.-

When the rease! has settled down in a sand; bottom, it is preserved for many months from breeking ap and Its porish a may be much the same as it would be when drating in raise water, if it be not tilted over by any under carrent drifts. The light, of course, depends a good deal apon the depth, and spun the pature of the but-Int Abere there fe nh chalk to give a colly thickness to the water, the direr pursues the work in a kind of gloomy twillight. By the ald of this he can see and feel his way around the ship , but when he arconds to the deck, and down into the principal cabins, he finds everything gilch dark, and bas puthing to guide him but his bands. This is the most difficult, and get the most frequent labor be has to encounter; the danger being that in a large vessel, where the cabin Mairy are deep, and the cabine are long and broad, he may get his air tube twisted round some salamiliar projection, and so squreze of his su ;ply of his from above. In positions such as this, be requires all his nerve and self-possession, all his power of feeling his way back in the exact road that he came. He may have got a precious casket, to which he has been directed, in his arms; but what of that, if he die before he can find the stairs. The cold helpless musses that bump against his belimet, as they float along the low roof over his bead, are the droomposed corpses of there who were huddled together in the cabin when the ship went down.

A few of these may be on the floor under his does, but only when pinned down by an overturned table or a fallen cheet. Their tendency is up TO THE MEMORY OF JOHN BROWN, THE pictores to the second floor and with the aid of ward, ever upward, and the remoraciess sea washes away the dead in lant from its dead mother's arms, and the dead wife from the dead husband's embesov. If the wreck be in the chancel, the small crate are already beginning to fatten on their prey. The diver discutangles himself from this silent crowd, and ascends the welcome stairs to the deck. The treasure he has rescued is hauled up into the attendant diving boat; and he turns again to renew his work. He seldom meets with an accelent under water-nover, perhaps, with death, and the chief risk he runs is from getsing some beary piece of abip lumber overturned es his long train of sir pipe. Even in this case the feels the sudden check and want of air, gropes his way back to the obstruction removes it, signals to his companions to be raised, and reaches the bear exhausted and alarmed, but not so much as to give up his place in the trade. His carnings mostly take the form of shares in what he recovers .-If fortunate, his gains may be large, if unfortunare they may be small; but no man can grudge him the toghest prises it is possible for him to win. May Whitetable always have the bonor of produding such bold and dexterous men as plentiful as whe has hitherto done, and may they have the wisdom to keep what they get .- Dicken's All the Year Bound.

THE HANDSOME SOUL.

One day last winter, a little boy from the South, who was on a visit to the city, was taking his first lesson in the art of 'sliding down hill,' when besuddenly found his feet in rather too close contact with a lidy's silk dress. Surpresed, murnified and confused he sprang from his sled, and cap in band, communicated an earnest apology. 'I beg your pardon, ma'am; I am tery sor-

"Who, that lady ?" returned his comrade; "if you call her a beauty, you shan't choose for me. Wby, she is more than thirty years old, and her a face is yellow and wrinkled."

"I don't care if her face is wrinkled," replied the little hero; 'her soul is handsome anglow.' A shout of laughter followed, from which the Bittle fellow was glad to escape. Relating the lueidens to his mother, he remarked ?

O, mother ! that lady did me good. I shall never lorget it; and when I am tempted to indulgs my augry passions I will think of what she and. Better have a soled dress than a ruffed. Aye! thou art gone! thou noble one, temper - Luile Pilgram.

From the True Assertant.

THE EPIDEMIC OF DOUGH The round weakness that periodically affects the politicians upon the approach of an election, is proverbial. He is an obtuse discerner of mon and things who has never witnessed the approach of this affection at the opining of successive outpaigns. We are now drawing nigh to another Presidental election, and the leading politicians are all coming down with the disease. It sets in with some very marked symptoms. The patient, alteris, of general sound virtue and integrity. straightany loses all moral courage and sinks his principles to a level, of which, at any other time, be would be heartily ashamed. He spends much of his breath in disasoning his belief in certain great Truths not supposed to be acceptable to the powers that be, or in apologising for and explaining away his past radicalisms. He is subject to severe attacks of 'expediency,' in which even the shedow of moral principle departs entirely from bis mental vision. He is for 'letting down' the standard of action, through a gross and entirely mistaken apprehension of what the honest masses

MARTYR OF HARPER'S FERRY. THUS NATE THE BURNTSONS PALLEN.

O ! marter to the cause of truth, Of spirit of the glorious deed, Thou, who for freedom's cause bath fought, Thou, who for freedom's cause hath bled. Nerve, nerve our spirite, give ne strength To follow where thy feet have trod : Guided by thee, 'twill surely lead, Nearer unto the throne of God.

Thine was a life of carnest toil, Of solf-reliant faith and trest : Thou livest yet, thou art not dead, Though mingling with thy kindred dust. Thy noble deeds, they may not die, They're graven on the human heart; They're borne on every southron breeze, That sweeps around a human mart.

Far in the West, 'neath Kansas skies, Thou reared the altar of the free; And gave to millione yet unborn, The blessed boos of liberty. Brave spirit, great, and good, and wise, So nobly fought, so nobly won; Thousands, within their western homes, Shall mourn the setting of thy sun,

Nor there alone-from east to west, On all the green shores of the earth, Immortalized for ave. and bless. Thy poble deeds and manly worth They speak a volume to the heart. Which truest words may never breather They may not from the soul depart, They're borne on every passing breeze.

And on Virginia's blood-stained soil, Thy spirit waged a learful spile: Where human feeh is bought and sold, And human sonle are sapped of life. The blow is struck -the scho flies Like wildfire over prairie land ; God perved thee, even upto death. Thee and thy noble Sparten band.

All praise, all glory! though that State, Dyed in her blood, and steeped in crime, Has dared to send unto their God,

The martyrs of this age, and time. Ave, coward bearts | your great revenge Is wasted on a soul so brave, You've drawn a nation's loyal blood

And filled a glorious martyr's grave. And on Virginia's statute dark Must rest this demning tale of shame,

Of which e'en heathen lands would blush. To have forever on their name. The last not of this fearful some Is closed -gone are the spirits brave, Nerved and sustained by God alone, To help she poor and suffering slave.

Friend of the poor, opposeed and weak ; A fants so strong, a heart so firm, Vainly we evermore shall seek.

We mourn thee as a nation mourns. The good, the brave, the true, the wise Who monquering fell, to free a world, And gain a high immortal prize.

Dead! when we needed most thy aid, Dead I in this stormy trial hour : When freedom's light begins to break, And southron bearts to feel her power. Dead | when the millions raise their eyes.

And pray for freedom or the grave :

Dead | thou so strong who toiled so long To break the fetters of the slave. But from the mountains in the North. Where gloriously thine ashes lie : A thousand kindred bearts shall rise, To etrike the biow, to do, or die.
